ELLEN V. FUTTER
President, Barnard College

You have been here during an enormously exciting and important time in the history of the College. You have participated in the beginning of a new and far more harmonious era in Barnard-Columbia relations. You have seen programs emerge — the Urban New York Program, Freshman Seminars, and the Quantitative Reasoning Program. You have witnessed the opening of a dormitory at 49 Claremont Avenue, an expanded Barnard-Columbia dining exchange, and cooperative intercollegiate athletics. As a diverse and talented group of young women, you have enriched Barnard by your presence.

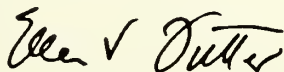

In my travels as President, I meet Barnard alumnae of all ages. I am regularly reminded that Barnard women have a special quality, a spirit that is at once inquiring, creative, and tenacious — an ability to make their dreams come true. What their college years did for them, I hope yours have done for you: deepened your confidence in your intellectual capacities and opened your windows to the world a bit wider.

These are exciting times to be a woman, with more opportunities available than ever before. Women have found their way, in increasing numbers, into the professions, the arts, Cabinet-level posts, and even into the Supreme Court and the Vice-Presidential campaign. But we know that, despite these obvious gains, women have not reached leadership positions in many aspects of corporate, political, and professional life. Young women like you must take every opportunity to be active leaders and involved citizens; indeed you must insist on being allowed these responsibilities.

Barnard is, I think, an unusually caring and individually oriented college. As you go forward into a complex and exciting world, you can be certain that your alma mater will be here to recognize and cheer your accomplishments. We look forward eagerly to your return visits. We hope you will do the same.

With warm wishes for personal fulfillment, happiness and good health in a world of peace,

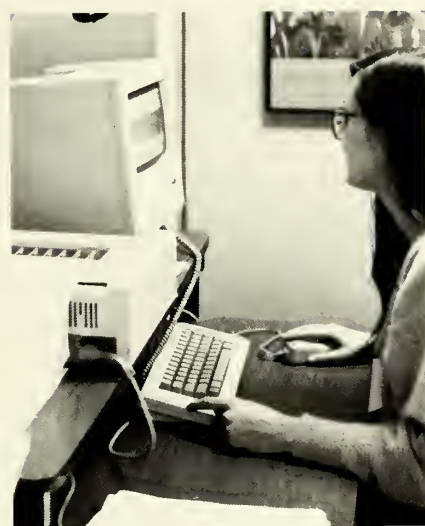

Sincerely,

Ellen V. Futter
President

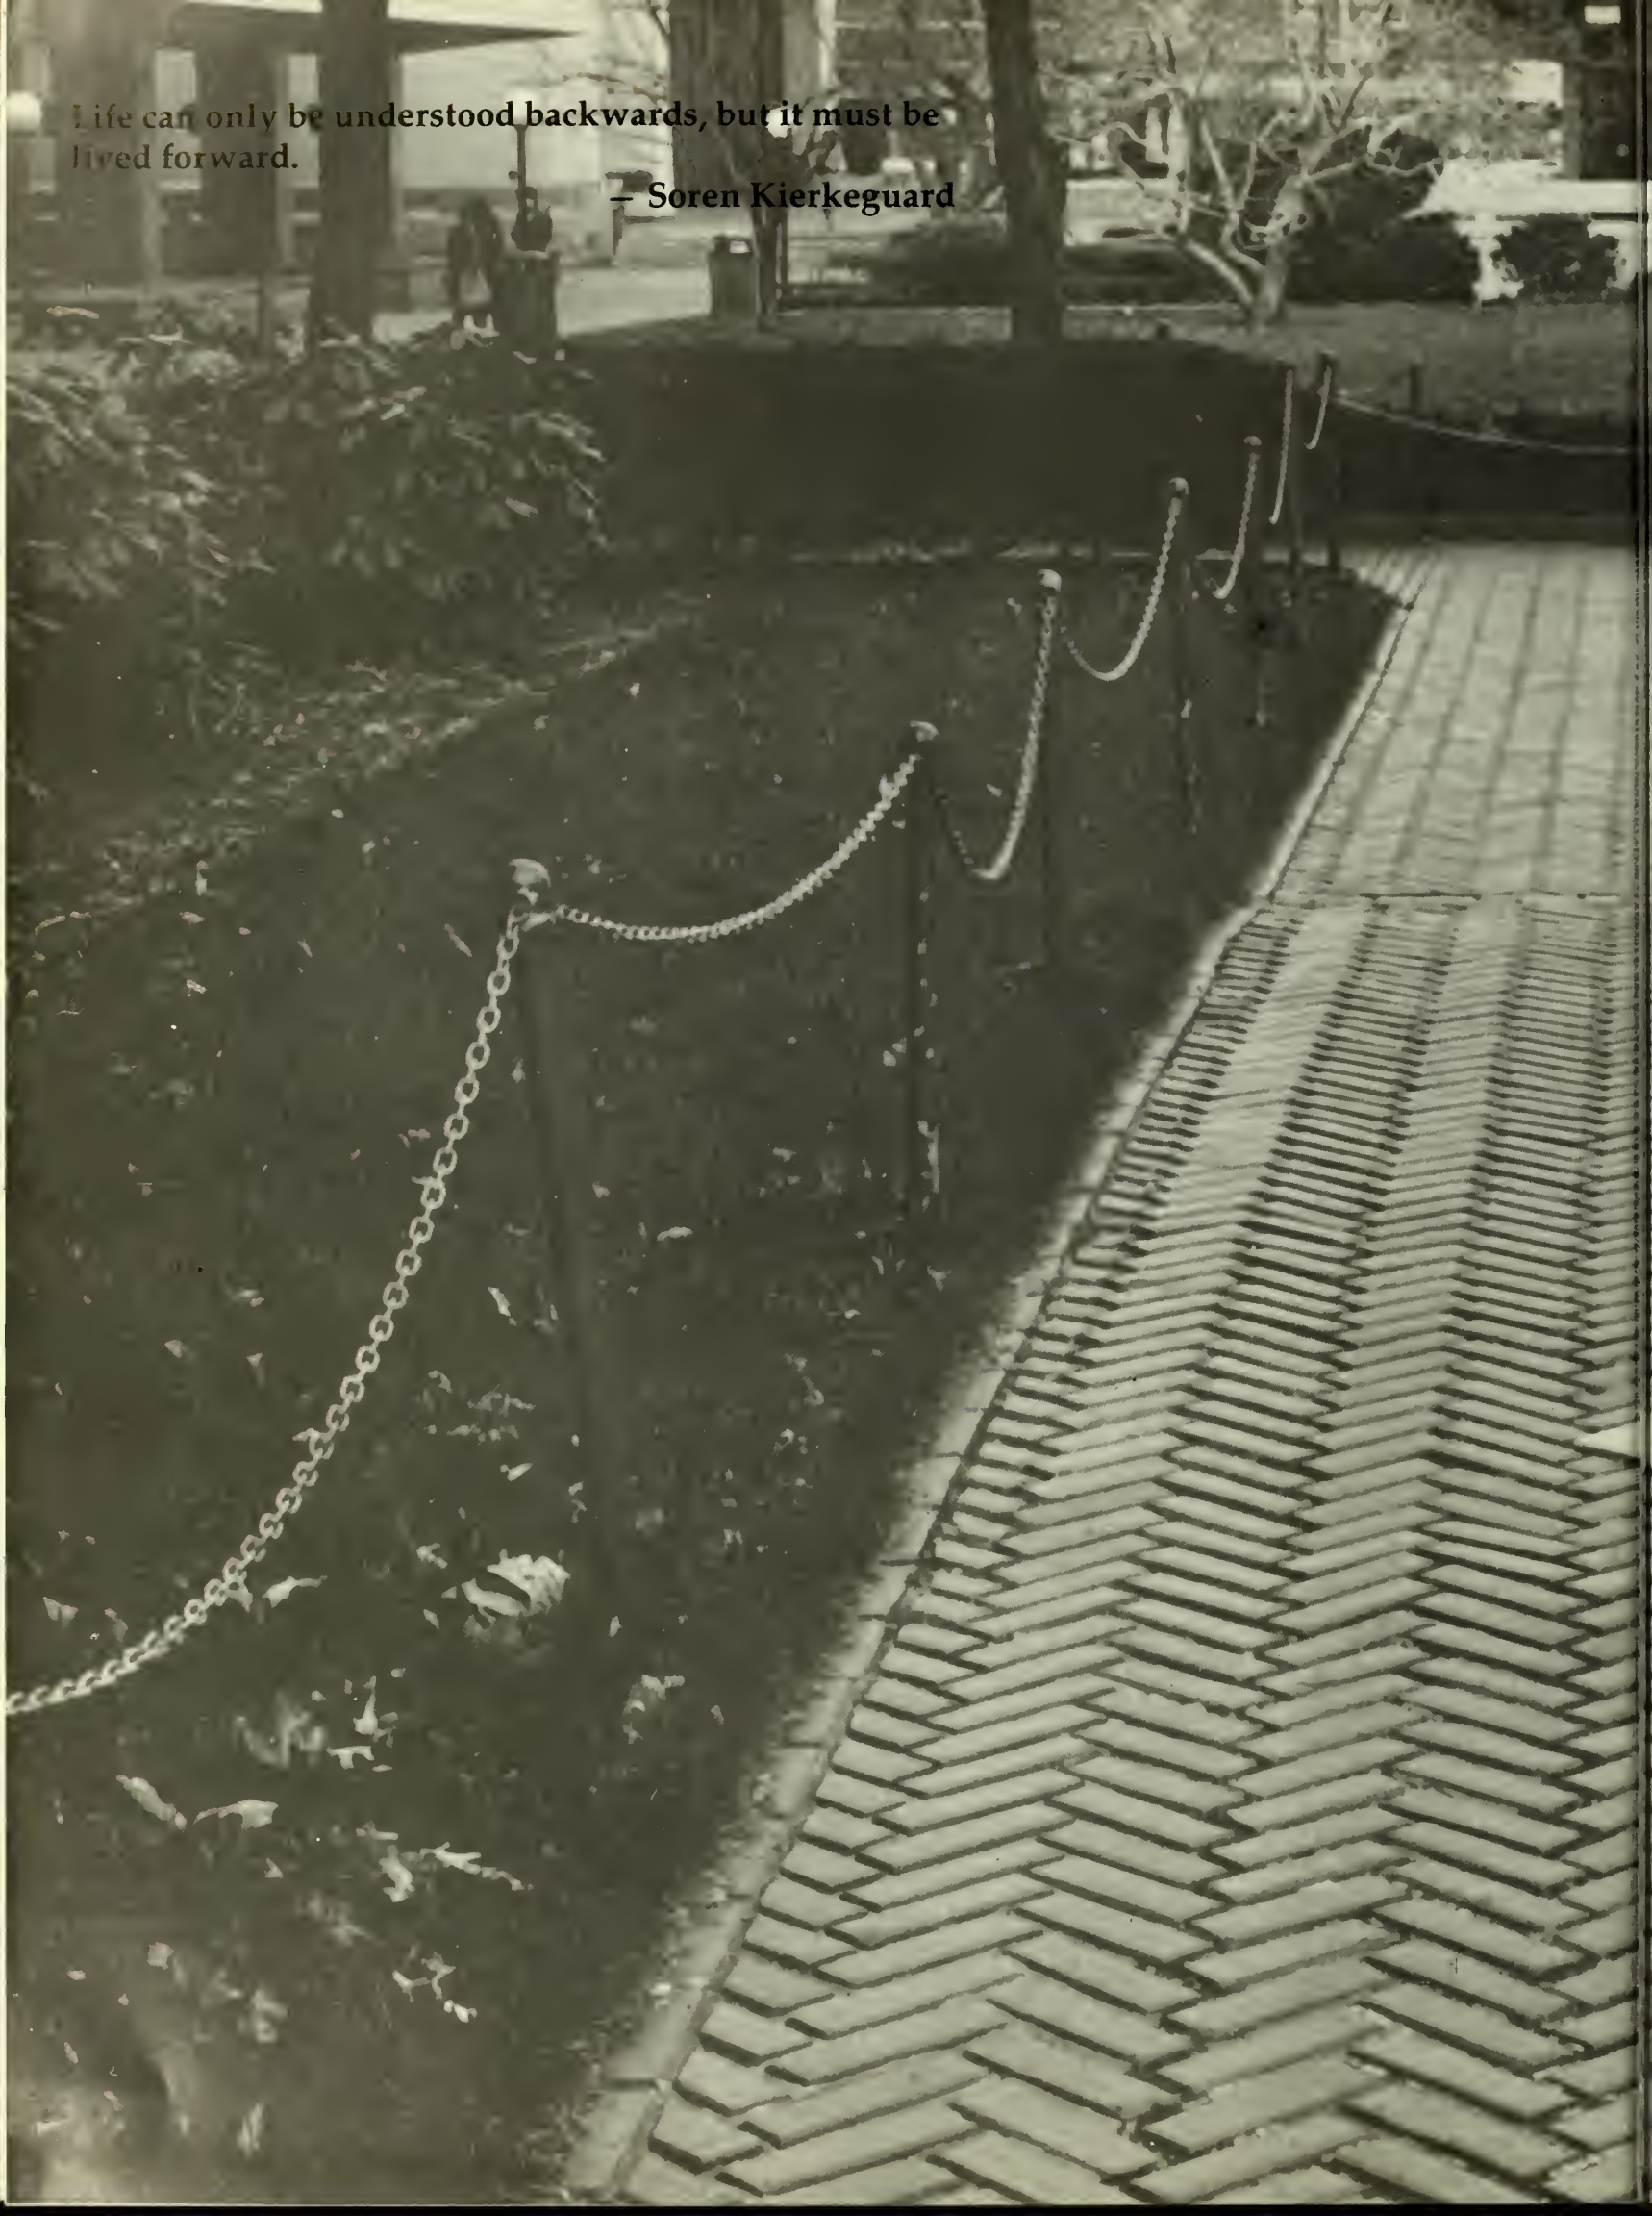

PROGRESS

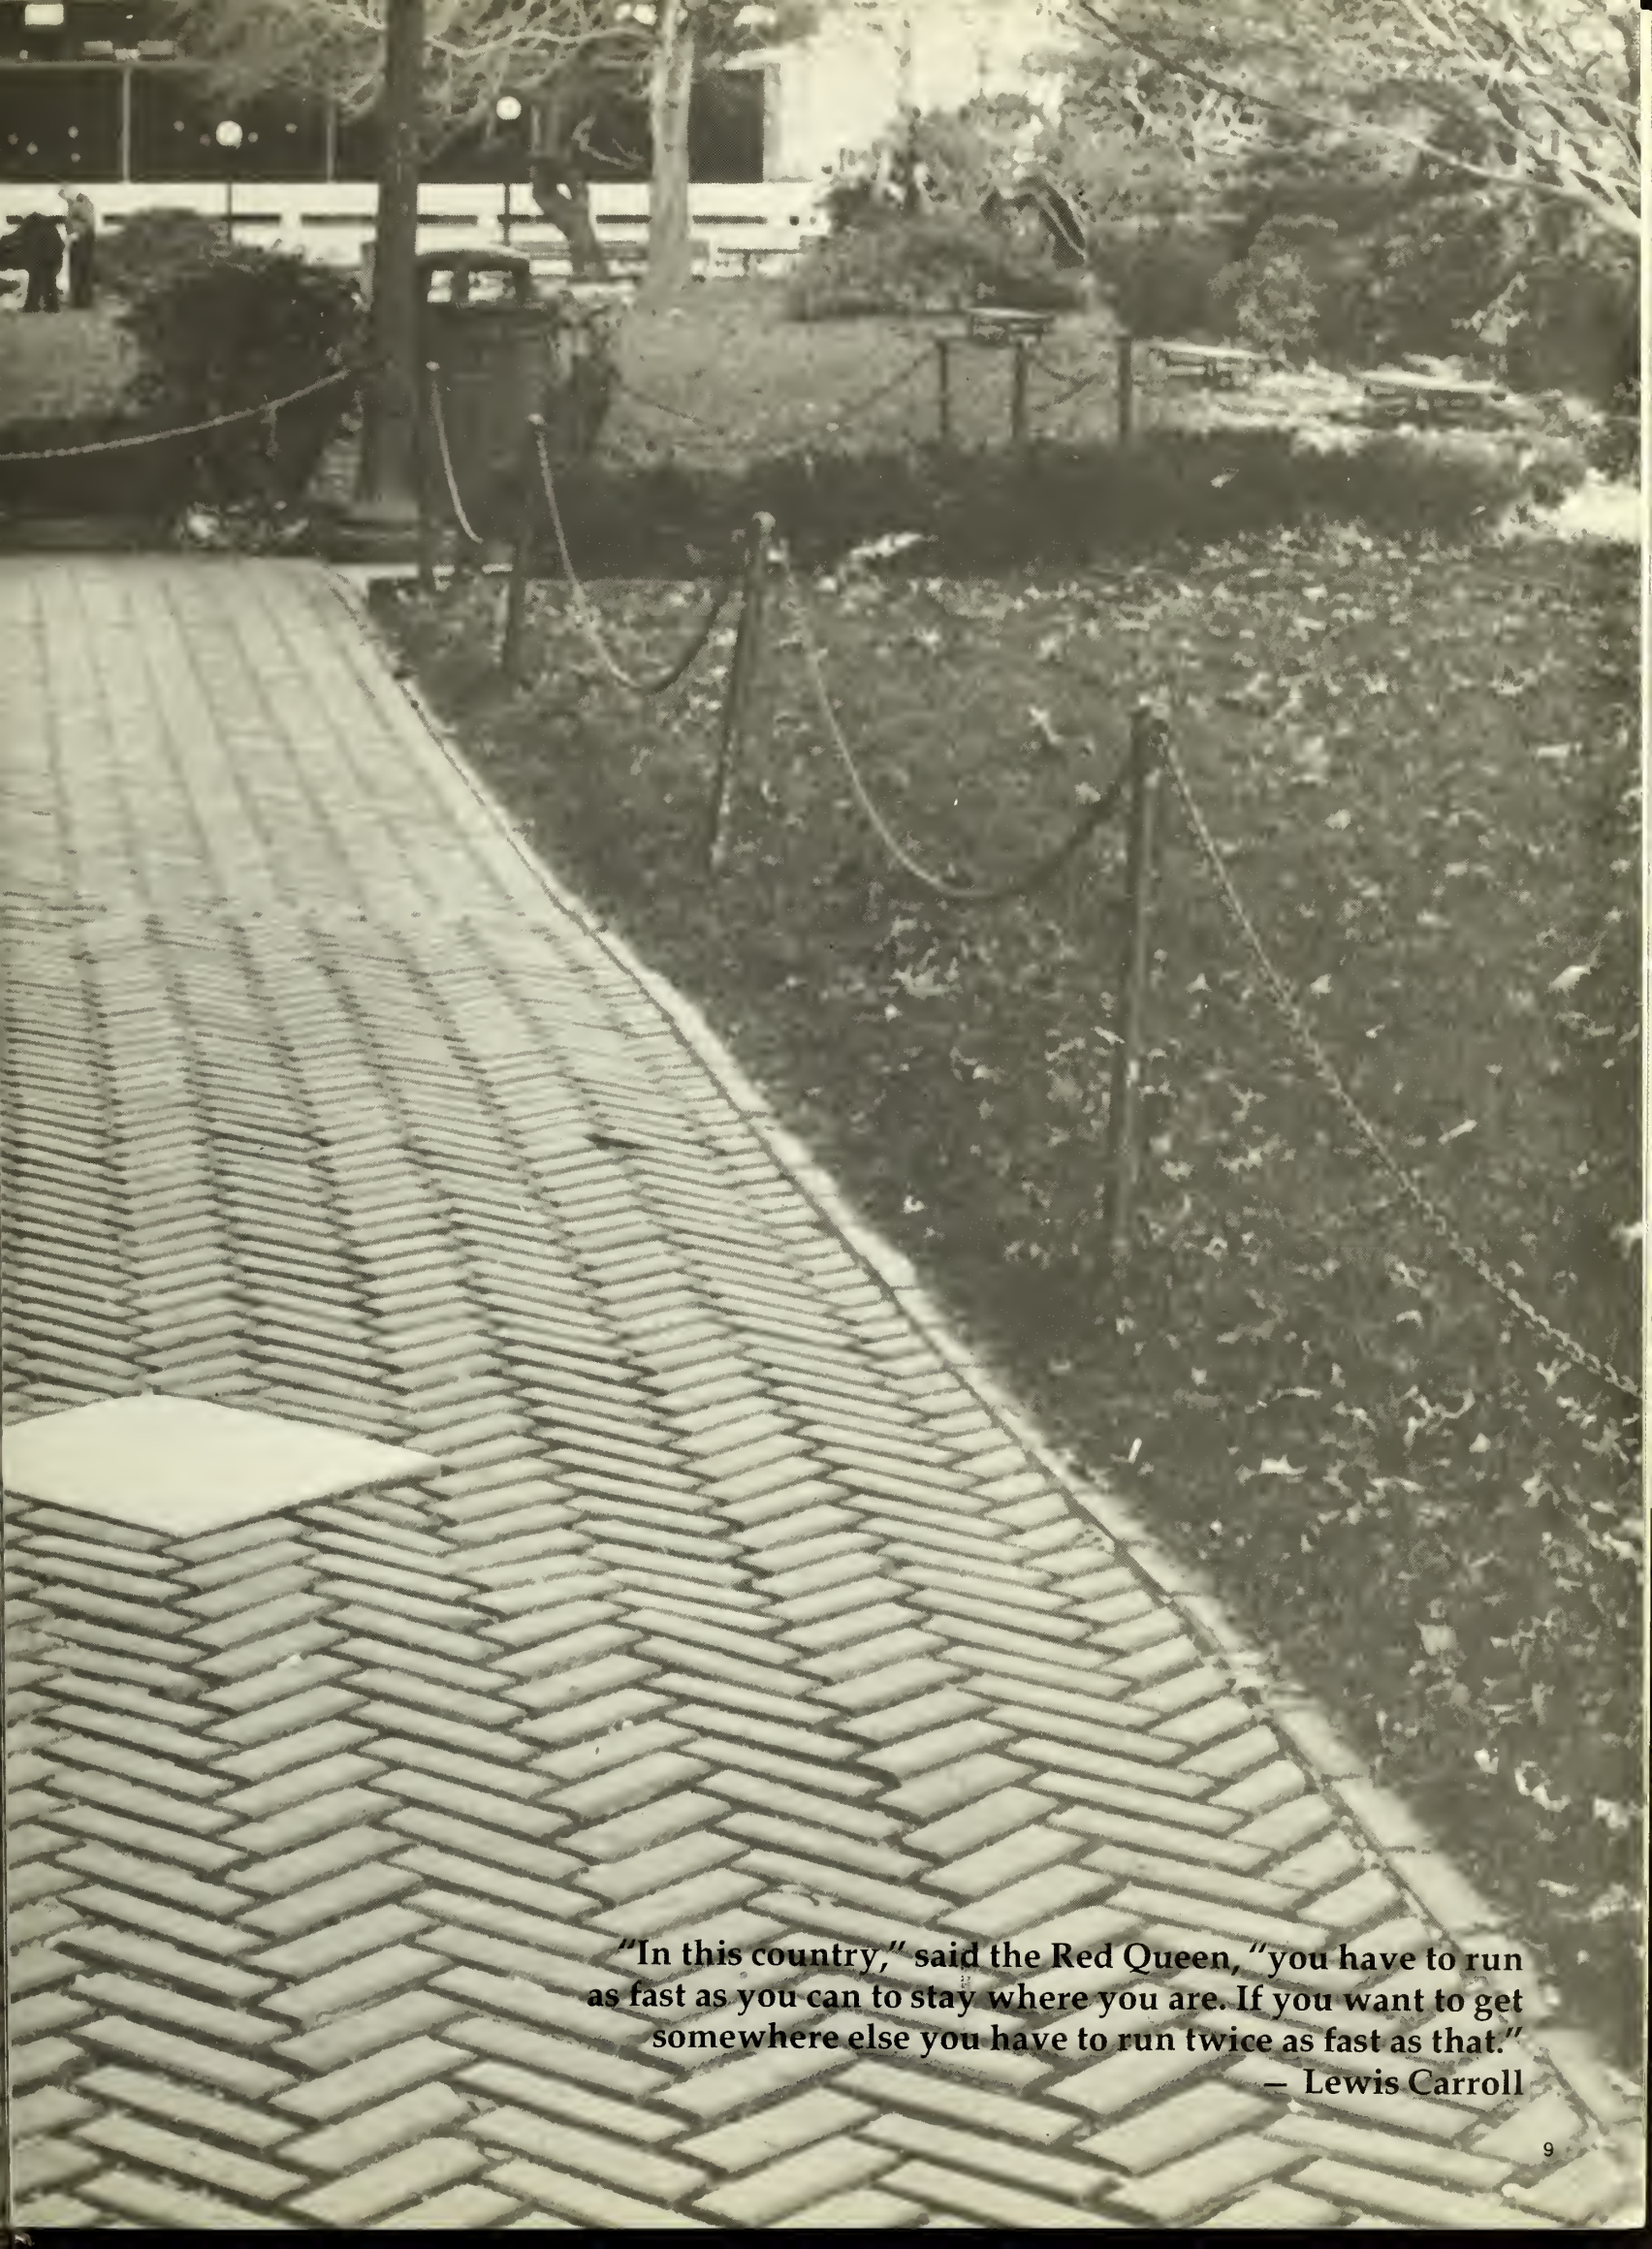

Progress . . . a vague word perhaps, since it explains the advancements of today's world only by comparing them to the outdated machinations of yesteryear . . . and yet each stage of development is a necessary contingent of a larger progression. There's no doubt that our world has progressed technologically — even here on campus we have witnessed the rapid growth of computers and word processors in offices, libraries, and students' rooms — what is more important, however, is that mankind is constantly progressing intellectually as well. We, at Barnard, have succeeded in advancing through four years of undergraduate education and can now formulate and process all our collected "data" and carry it with us to the next stage . . .

Life can only be understood backwards, but it must be lived forward.

— Søren Kierkegaard

"In this country," said the Red Queen, "you have to run as fast as you can to stay where you are. If you want to get somewhere else you have to run twice as fast as that."

— Lewis Carroll

It begins the same way every Monday morning at the ungodly hour of eleven. Struggling up the stairs in Hamilton, my stomach grumbling, I wonder how Columbia could possibly think that twenty-five people could fit into that tiny elevator. "It's just one more flight," I tell myself, "You can make it."

"Grrr," gripes my stomach and I momentarily consider bagging the whole day. I know that I've missed too many classes already, and the conscientious freshman still within me (you know, the one who was always prompt to 9 a.m. classes) just hasn't been satisfied. "Go sit down," she tells me. "You've got the key to life right there — spilling all over your hand." I am reminded of the cup of coffee now tilted in a 45° angle dripping wastefully onto my shoes.

"O.K.," my senior mentality agrees. "I think I'm ready."

Finding a seat on a Monday morning is not a problem. Not too close; not too far away. Ah ... here we are! I glance around during the lecture and notice that compared to the underclassmen, we upperclassmen are taking very few notes. I'm no longer a human recorder, I realize, and the professor's witticisms simply don't thrill me anymore. Boredom sets in and despite the caffeine, I find myself drifting into senior "Never-Never Land."

I remember my very first day of classes after the excitement and yes, the tension of orientation had worn off a little. Breakfast at 8 a.m. 9 a.m.: French 1a, 3rd floor Milbank. Racing to class ... the elevator's broken. Great, just great ... I can't be late. Why are the upperclassmen so calm? Why do the sophomores keep offering unsolicited advice? Program planning's not much better; My advisor has no clue. "You can't take this class, dear, you're only a freshman ... wait a few years." I never did take that psych lab. God, I can't wait to be done with these requirements! When will my A.P. credit come through? Does it ruin my record if I take Calculus pass/fail? My advisor's busy helping someone with a senior thesis ... I need help too, you know. I'll ask my R.A. at the floor meeting ... Oh, let's have a party! Can we invite some guys from Columbia? Do we have to proof? We dress up to eat at John Jay ... the elevator's broken of course. Co-ed living next year definitely. Do we have to be on 19 meals? I can hardly wait to be out of BHR and cooking for myself.

What the Hell is my roommate's problem? Um ... nice haircut ... what are your parents going to say? I can't wait to get home for break. I'm not gonna make it through finals. Wow! How do all those people get work done on Low Library steps? Maybe I'll have time to sit later. Is there something the matter with what I'm wearing? I thought everyone wore grubbies. Why do the upperclassmen have to stare? Would someone please tell me the best place to pick with this crummy lottery number.

I vaguely remember sophomore year. I've progressed from Reid to Hewitt. The elevators still don't work. What a change! I feel more confident and relaxed. Look at those freshmen ... they're so typical! They don't even know their way around campus. "Hey, take this class ... it's really good." My floor orders from Empire Szechuan and talks past quiet hours. I've found my little social clique and we eat at V&T's a lot. Why is everyone else so pretentious? My R.A.'s only a junior. Floor meeting? Sorry I've made other plans. What's the matter with Columbia men? What's the matter with Barnard women? What's this week's fashion statement? Me ... I've got my own style ... don't I have the coolest haircut ... Coffee's become a habit ... oops, time for another all-nighter. How does everyone else do it? I thought I was going to like my classes this year. Why are they pressuring me to choose a major, already? Maybe Poli Sci ... no English ... no, well, maybe ... I can't believe they're making us pre-register during mid-terms. "Mom, Dad, I'm staying in the city over break ... I'll get a job, that's how." I want to get to know New York ... on Columbia library pay. I can't wait till everyone's back for spring ... we spend it on the bottom of the steps pretending to do work. Look at that girl getting her heels caught on college walk. Look at that guy. "Hi! How are you?" Columbia campus is great ... I'll live here next year, definitely. I can't believe they didn't merge!

Oh, no ... junior year ... time to get serious. Why does everyone have their entire year planned out except for me? No, Columbia wasn't co-ed when I applied to school. Hey, listen, I've waited two years to take this course, whad'ya mean there's no room in Lit Hum? I've finally found a major advisor — she's got 30 freshman advisees ... great.

Oh, my gosh! There's only one year left after this one. I still don't know what the hell I'm doing! I still can't get my work done . . . what's the matter with me? Why are all the classes I want to take offered on Tuesday and Thursday from 1:10-2:25? Does anyone know of a good Monday/Wednesday class? Yes, Barnard has an economics department . . . listen Pal, you can't criticize Barnard classes if you've never taken one. Did you ever notice that most of the "guts" are Columbia classes? I know we don't have a real library . . . but my professors know me. The same people are in all the different clubs . . . why is everyone so apathetic? What do I care? I can't even get to my 1:10 class without two cups of coffee. I'm probably going to die from all this TAB. My R.A. has to sign this form? I don't even know who she is. Jesus! I gotta get outta here for break! I have no money though. "Mom, Dad? . . ." "O.K., I'll sit on the steps but only if we sit higher up so that I can try to do my work. I don't feel like saying hello to everyone." I'm so behind, I can't believe it's finals! I'm late . . . Christ! . . . when are they going to fix these stupid elevators?! . . . What ever made me think I was going to Med school anyway? What am I going to do? . . . All my friends are graduating.

Graduation . . . thank God I'm getting out of this place! . . . But what the hell am I going to do for the rest of my life? Why didn't I take the damn LSAT's last year? Maybe, try Career Services . . . very funny! Doesn't it seem that this campus has gotten more conservative? I'm hardly ever in my room in Furnald . . . I hardly know anyone from my own class . . . my advisor's teaching a Freshman seminar. Well, I finally got to see the C.U. band in College library the night before Orgo . . . had to take an incomplete in my senior thesis, though. "I don't know . . . do I have any marketable skills?" I spend early morning hours at the computer terminal. Who said senior year would be easy . . . I've got classes on Fridays! Why are the freshmen done with finals before I am? Why are some people here in Morningside Heights forever? Didn't he graduate yet? I finish my applications over winter break. I'm finally cleared for registration . . . I meet my friends on the top of the steps . . . we don't bother bringing any books . . . we just sit and think . . . Am I ready?

It happens the same way every Monday morning at about 11:45 a.m. I hear a loud click and realize it's my pen falling on the floor. I'm embarrassed until I see that I'm not the only one. The professor doesn't seem to have noticed. He would notice in a Barnard class because they're so much smaller. I'm now able to discriminate between my good and bad classes just as I can trust myself to take decent notes without writing down every word. Somewhere along the line, despite my addiction to coffee, I've learned how to think. "Grrr," my stomach comments, and I realize that I still don't know how to eat right. Maybe, after I graduate . . .

How do you think all of this gets done? The answer sits — and sits — and sits — in room 116 McIntosh. That's the office of the Student Government Association and that's where you would surely find Ramona, Virginia, Eileen, Dunwreath and Allison striving to make life at Barnard exciting and rewarding.

The activities of Student Government are coordinated by a five-member executive board which is chosen through an all-college election. The Executive Board is responsible for coordinating student government, extracurricular activities and organizations, and administering the Student Activity Fee. However, the most important duty of the Student Government Board is to act as a liaison between the student body and the Barnard administration.

BIOLOGY CLUB

The Biology Club at Barnard, was founded in 1978 to help unite students interested in the Biological Sciences and related fields. The club provides information on different career opportunities in the form of guest lecturers, peer advice, field trips and social events. These activities give the students and faculty a chance to become better acquainted.

The club officers are: Mary Esquenazi and Jackie Tejada (Co-Presidents), Sharon Revan (Vice-President), Maria Silva (Secretary) and Lillian Vidal (Treasurer).

GOSPEL CHOIR

The Barnard/Columbia Gospel Choir as it grows in size, continues to expand within its expressed goal: to provide gospel music for the Barnard/Columbia campus and nearby community. The Gospel Choir holds annual Christmas and Spring concerts, and also sings during visits to the Harlem Hospital Children's Ward. As a result of increased recognition and support, the Gospel Choir has received numerous invitations to sing throughout the city, and also seeks increased participation and collaboration with other campus musical groups.

GILBERT AND SULLIVAN

The Barnard Gilbert and Sullivan Society, although dedicated to its Gilbert and Sullivan heritage, has recently branched out to include more modern theater. This group of dedicated and serious performers has been known to hold rehearsals overtime at the West End singing excerpts from anything from H.M.S. Pinafore to Guys and Dolls. The fall production of Iolanthe was no exception to this tradition. And now, on with the show!

OFFICERS — Sharon Nelson (President), Mattie Cohan (Vice-President), Mary Ann Emerson (Secretary).

PHILHARMONIA

The Barnard-Columbia Philharmonia Society offers a forum for Columbia and Barnard musicians to perform in an orchestra and in chamber ensembles apart from the established University curriculum. The Philharmonia Society performs both orchestral and chamber concerts. Chamber groups from the society also perform at various university functions throughout the year, providing musicians for interested sponsors within the university and outside the campus. The Philharmonia Board members include: Kathie Sinsabaugh (President), Sean Coan (Vice-President and Business Manager), Ira Morris (Publicity), Wendy Allegret (Librarian), Diane Fine and Esther Langer (Co-Personnel), Jenny Rickard, Carol Yanofsky (Co-Chamber Music), Joshua Wirchaster (General Manager), Mark Ettinger (Student Conductor), Martin Ran (Conductor).

ASU

The Asian Student Union endeavors to enhance fellowship among various Asian groups via cultural, academic and social functions, to promote understanding of Asian culture by the community, and to act as a voice for the interest of Asian students on campus. ASU's events are as varied as its members — in the past they have held casino nights, ski trips, films, coffee houses, sports tournaments and Asian nights. A new yearly tradition is their Asian Awareness Conference which features speakers, workshops, meals and entertainment and is attended by students of different East coast schools. The first ASU event each year is a special welcoming event with Asian delicacies and entertainers. Anyone wishing to take part is welcome to join.

Barnard's Organization of Black Women, now in its seventeenth year, is a child of black student activism of the late 60's. It serves as a general meeting ground for black women and strives to educate its members by sponsoring political, cultural, and social events. Some of our annual events include a Halloween Dance, Sadie Hawkins Dance, and Third World Weekend, which introduces pre-freshmen to the Barnard/Columbia community. BOBW also holds a Kwanza Celebration, an African celebration of love, unity and achievement in the community. Our major event, Celebration of Black Womanhood, is a week-long series of events held each spring to recognize and celebrate the contributions of African women in the world community.

The Chinese Students Club is very popular among the students of the Barnard/Columbia Community. With a membership of well over 300 students, we are one of the largest organizations on campus. The CSC prides itself in continually providing activities and events that appeal to our wide range of members. Among some of our activities are: volleyball and basketball teams, a dance troupe, a lion dance group, acting workshop, ping pong, tennis, and bowling tournaments. CSC's most elaborate event is the Chinese New Year Festival, attended by faculty, members and many non-affiliated students. The CSC publishes a monthly newsletter, and a yearly bulletin to keep all our members informed.

GREEK-AMERICAN SOCIETY

The purpose of the Greek-American Society is to introduce Greek culture to the Columbia University campus. We also try to promote fellowship and cultural ties among our members.

ITALIAN CLUB

The Barnard/Columbia Italian Club provides both cultural and social experiences for the entire university community. Aside from the typical "food" aspect of Italian culture, the club sponsors trips to Italian movies, art exhibits, lectures, the opera . . . Conversation sessions are held every week for those interested in advancing their knowledge of the language. There are also social activities organized by the club such as parties, dinners, ski trips and informal coffee hours. The club provides the students with both a means of meeting people and an opportunity to deepen their knowledge of and interest in, that sunny and friendly country known as Italia!

SOUNDS OF CHINA

The purpose of Sounds of China is three-fold. Firstly, to provide all varieties of Chinese music to the Columbia Community while entertaining the Chinese music listeners. Secondly, to provide the resources for members to produce a quality radio show in Chinese and English in our three-hour weekly show on WKCR. Thirdly, to provide a harmonious setting of an intimate club for members to pursue and develop their interests in Chinese music and culture. Among our social activities are dance parties, dumpling dinners, movie shows and happy hours.

SPANISH CLUB

"El Club de Español" is an organization which is designed to present both cultural and academic events to the University's Spanish-Latin American community. Our activities throughout the year include: Conversation hour, films, plays, poetry readings and conferences with writers, artists, musicians and other professionals. Our club has a close and supportive relationship with the Barnard College Spanish Department. We would like to thank the department for their inspiration and help in the planning and execution of our activities.

ASIAN JOURNAL

The Asian Journal, in the ninth year of its existence, is an annual Barnard/Columbia publication. Our purpose is to foster a greater understanding of the problems, interests and experiences of the diverse and multi-ethnic Asian community in America. We aim for a high quality aesthetic presentation as well as intellectual diversity. Current conflicts of Asian identity and status within ethnic and American communities are considered, along with reflections on heritage and custom, through the essays, poetry, short stories, art work and photographs of our contributors.

The Bulletin had an extremely dynamic year with the editorial board doubling and the staff increasing many fold. Never before has the paper expanded at such a rapid pace. The Class of 1988, as well as returning students, joined the staff and brought to it even more enthusiasm and energy.

In addition to quality community/campus coverage, the Bulletin broadened its coverage of the arts and national politics and offered the Barnard community a glimpse into the depths of the Big Apple. Large, quality papers were the norm.

Bulletin is on a roll. Under the leadership of Beth Wightman and the new board, the paper is expected to continue to thrive.

COURSE GUIDE

The Columbia-Barnard Course Guide provides students with the information necessary for choosing courses. With tuition costs as high as they are, it is important that the student be aware of what is open to her, and that she make an intelligent choice from among the alternatives. The Course Guide provides this information through reviews based on comments of students who have taken the courses. The reviews also contain a set of numerical ratings based on a 1-10 scale which quantifies these comments. The last piece of information the Course Guide has is contained in our grade charts. These charts show how an instructor grades his or her course. This mix of qualitative and quantitative information provides the student with all the facts she needs to make her four years at Barnard as meaningful and worthwhile as possible.

ADMISSIONS CLUB

In January 1984, a small group of Barnard women established the Barnard Admissions Society. An ever growing club, the Barnard Admissions Society directs its attention toward the promotion of Barnard's diversity and quality standards with prospective freshmen and transfer students.

The members of the Society dedicate much of their time in planning Open Houses. Their greatest contribution in organizing daily tours including Saturdays, and sleep-overs for many of the students visiting the campus. Once the Admissions Office has sent out the letters of acceptance the Barnard Admissions Society contacts accepted applicants all over the country to congratulate them and answer any of their questions.

STUDENT COMMITTEE FOR UNICEF

The Student Committee for UNICEF was founded in April, 1984. It is the second student organization representing in a United States college campus. The purpose of the Student Committee for UNICEF is to better inform students about the immediate needs of children around the world and to provide a means by which they can actively participate in helping alleviate their suffering.

CIRCLE K

Circle K has striven to help the Barnard and Columbia Community with various services. Our work with the elderly, the needy and children has given us many fulfilling experiences and memories. We find that by helping others we help ourselves.

SHE

Student Help for the Elderly is a unique service on the University campus. Each year students visit elderly people on the Upper West Side. These students volunteer to shop and perform escort and companionship services. Student Help is managed by three to five undergraduate directors. They take referrals from social service agencies and attempt to match potential clients with students. Before our program takes a client, one of the directors makes an assessment visit to the client's home to explain the program. Students from any division of the University can work for SHE. Our agency offers a great opportunity to make friends with someone outside of the hectic college world. In addition, Student Help also sponsors a workshop each year on the special problems of aging.

The Columbia women's basketball team begins its tenth season with high optimism. "I'm working with a well balanced squad which has the potential for a winning season," says veteran coach Nancy Kalafus. Four veterans returned to the line-up this year along with eight incoming recruits and 6'1" transfer Ellen Bossert. The team is led by captain Helen Doyle B'85. Doyle, as well as record breaking sophomore Ula Lysniak were all-tournament team selections in the 1983-84 season. Also returning are letterwinners Wendy Rosov and Valerie Brunger.

The Lions are presently competing at Division III level, although a move to Division I and a slot in the Ivy League double round-robin schedule is projected for 1986. The schedule features contests against New York area opponents, and a number of tournaments including the Seven Sisters Invitational.

This year's Columbia women's volleyball team included five returning veterans and a strong group of recruited freshmen, led by co-captains Ula Lysniak B'87 and Anna Yee E'86, and coached by Cindy Laughlin.

For the first time since its inception, the team qualified for the New York State Championships, finishing the season with 20 wins and 30 losses. Junior hitter Anna Leung made the Seven Sister all-tournament team.

The team faced a particularly demanding schedule this year, including three times as many Division I opponents as in the previous year. It featured local, state and regional tournaments as well as the Seven Sisters Fall Classic hosted by Columbia, and concluded with the highly competitive Ivy League Championships in the fall.

Track and Field

As the Columbia University women's track team entered its second year of Division I competition, there was an increased commitment by the administration to build a strong women's track program. The coaching staff grew to include three coaches — Kate Moore, Sirkka McMenamin and Kevin McGill, each of whom have worked to develop athletes to compete at the national level.

The 1984-85 team was a predominantly freshman squad. The sprint team's Heather Rud-dock, top quarter-miler for the Lions', improved steadily during the first months of the season and set a university varsity record in her first intercollegiate meet. Other freshmen providing depth and quality include Sarah Geary and Sherdeen Graham. Carrie Daly, the best javelin thrower in Ivy League history returned for her third year.

In Cross Country, co-captain Alison South led Columbia in every race, with Marilyn Nicholas, Letitia Swann and Maria Torella scoring consistently throughout the season. In the Seven Sisters Invitational held at Van Courtland Park, Columbia placed second among seven teams behind Smith. The team took second place out of nine, once again, at the New York Tech Invitationals, behind Stonybrook, as well as second in the Metropolitan Invitational. In another meet, Columbia finished third out of four teams behind Princeton and Pennsylvania but defeating Seaton Hall.

All three teams — cross country, indoor and outdoor track — face demanding regular-season schedules year-round, including major invitational meets throughout the East. The squads also compete in several regional and national championships, including the traditional Heptagonal Games (the eight Ivy League members plus Army and Navy) at the conclusion of each season.

The women's tennis team forged ahead this season under the leadership of co-captains Philippa Feldman B'86 and Teresa Saputo C'87. Finishing fourth of eleven teams in the New York State Fall Championships, they ended the season with a 2 win, 1 loss record. Continued success is projected for the spring season.

Opponents are drawn from throughout the Metropolitan area and Ivy League colleges, with several tournaments supplementing the dual-meet schedule.

Tennis

Formal round-robin Ivy League competition highlights the fencing schedule, which also includes opponents from New England and the Metropolitan area, in addition to several open tournaments. The team has consistently placed among the top ten teams in the nation for the past four years, and has produced three members of the U.S. Junior Olympic World Team, including sophomore Katy Bilodeaux C'87, who won the Junior Olympic competition. Second year women's coach Aladar Kogler has excellent talent to work with and hopes to move the team to the top of the Ivy League under the leadership of co-captains Lisa Piazza B'85 and Betsy Kavalier B'86.

The 1984-85 Columbia women's swim team consists of an outstanding group of freshmen, as well as eight returning letterwinners. Sophomores Kim Mock, a freestyle/backstroke specialist, and Lynne Lada, who was undefeated in dual-meet freestyle competition as a freshman, lead the returning Lions, while the influx of freshmen give the team depth and versatility. Says coach Jeff Ward, "When arriving at Columbia two years ago, I was committed to bringing us to the top of Eastern swimming and becoming a presence on the national level within five years. I feel we are ahead of schedule."

Archery

Deki Choden

Archery has a long and distinguished history on Morningside Heights with the women's team consistently finishing among the nation's intercollegiate top ten for the past six years. In its fall season, the team remained undefeated within the New York City Metropolitan League for the third consecutive year, defeating Lehman College, Baruch College, Steven's Institute of Technology and Queensborough Community College.

Governed by the National Archery Association, the schedule consists of dual shoots in the Metropolitan League and major tournaments throughout the East. The team placed first in both the Eastern Indoor Archery Championship in Reading, Pennsylvania and the Nassau Bowman Invitational. The season continues throughout the winter and spring culminating in the outdoor championships in May.

I came from Brazil by myself 5½ years ago. I did not know what I wanted to do when I came to NY from Rio de Janeiro, then after a year here, I decided I wanted to go back to school. It was a long tedious process taking the SAT, TOFEL but finally I was accepted to Barnard. It was and has been a wonderful and hard experience and I am very thankful for the support I have received at Barnard.

WITH THE BEST WISHES OF THE BOARD OF TRUSTEES, BARNARD COLLEGE

25,000 Members of The Associate Alumnae of Barnard College Welcome the Class of 1985 to Membership

Congratulations, and welcome to the Barnard alumnae network. Through the Associate Alumnae, you can find out what's going on at Barnard, where your classmates are, and how to locate an alumna who shares your career interest. You can attend special events and conferences, audit courses, swim in the Barnard pool, join a regional alumnae club, use the library, travel abroad, win a fellowship, and take an active part in alumnae affairs. As an alumna, you will be receiving the quarterly magazine, Barnard Alumnae, which regularly reports news from all the classes as well as the latest developments on campus. Be sure to keep the Alumnae Office informed of your current address and send us news of yourself and your current activities. We look forward to sharing ideas, opinions, and interests with you.

Dear Class of 1985,

On August 31, 1981, after a humid hectic Orientation day, I told you that I was "utterly ecstatic to be welcoming you." I know now that I had good reason, for you have been a marvelous class — those who began then and those of you who have come aboard along the way. Please keep right on being your inquiring, skeptical, independent, and compassionate selves.

On that first day, I toasted you with a prophetic jingle. Here it is again, with an added middle:

Here you are right at the start;
Lots of brains and lots of heart.
Miss Royer says, you'd better bet,
That you're the very finest yet!
She says you really take the cake(s) —
Miss Royer does not make mistakes!

So now you're ready to depart;
Lots of brains and lots of heart.
We know the former's tightly packed
And hope the latter's still intact.
Miss Royer's fully vindicated —
If anything, she understated!

So let us sing and let us cheer;
We haven't got a thing to fear.
There's not another class alive
As good as Barnard's '85!

Come back often; if you can't visit, write!

Affectionately,

Barbara Whitman
